Strengthening Economic Statecraft

Meridian Center for Corporate Diplomacy

Business leaders are increasingly central to diplomacy in a world where their companies operate across borders and influence global systems. The Center for Corporate Diplomacy prepares executives to navigate geopolitical risk, understand national priorities, and shape a more stable and cooperative global economy. Meridian is redefining the role of the private sector in diplomacy—not just as stakeholders, but as architects of international engagement.

Securing America's Technological Edge

Meridian Center for Technology, Innovation and Space

Technological breakthroughs are redrawing the global map. From AI and quantum to clean energy and space, the Center for Technology, Innovation and Space brings together public and private sector leaders to shape global governance frameworks, build coalitions, drive international collaboration, and safeguard strategic U.S. interests in the critical domains of tomorrow.

Connecting State and Local Governments

Meridian Center for State and Local Diplomacy

The Meridian Center for State and Local Diplomacy empowers U.S. governors, mayors, and local officials around the world to engage globally on trade, investment, energy, technology, and more. Through strategic convenings, policy insights, and international networks, the Center strengthens local-global impact. It positions subnational actors as key diplomatic players in advancing both American interests and global cooperation.

Harnessing the Power of Culture and Sports

Meridian Center for Culture and Sports Diplomacy

The Meridian Center for Culture and Sports Diplomacy is a force multiplier for U.S. soft power—mobilizing athletes, artists, and cultural leaders as frontline diplomats to build trust and foster international connection where traditional diplomacy may not reach. As global attention turns to America's 250th anniversary, the Olympics, and the World Cup, we are catalyzing a network of cultural leaders and institutions to develop high-impact international partnerships and programs.

Shaping Tomorrow's Changemakers

Meridian Center for Global Leadership

The Meridian Center for Global Leadership designs and delivers professional exchanges and leadership development programs that strengthen the global capacity of emerging and established leaders. Through training, cross-sector partnerships, and immersive exchanges, we equip changemakers with the skills, insights and networks to advance shared global priorities—ranging from economic development to geopolitical resilience.

Advancing America's Diplomatic Reach

Meridian Center for Diplomatic Engagement

The Meridian Center for Diplomatic Engagement accelerates collaboration among the diplomatic corps and U.S. public and private sector leaders to address pressing global challenges. Through curated, nonpartisan convenings, Meridian fosters the dialogue and relationships essential for solving today's most complex economic, security, and societal issues.
